THE LONGER VIEW.

The Salvation Army is taking the same view that it is after Christmas rather than at Christmas that relief is needed most in the city, and is making an appeal for funds to provide the necessities of life to poor families when the festive season has passed. There are many organizations which aim to make Christmas what it ought to be for those who are not able to provide for themselves. All need a community for the good work they do. But there is nothing less effort to take care of the family in poor circumstances during the long months which lie between Christmas and the coming of spring. The attempt of the Army to bridge that gap for the unfortunate ones is characteristically worthy, and should meet with hearty approval and generous assistance from the public.

NEITHER HONEST NOR "BROKE."

By a vote of 535 to 29 the French Chamber of Deputies endorsed a proposal to borrow $100,000,000 from U.S. financiers. The vote in the Senate was even more impressive, and the Senate has agreed that the loan lies not merely in the fact that the loan is to be made, but that France agrees to pay 7 per cent interest for the use of the money.

Those who have heard that France was wallowing in wealth but refusing to make efforts to repay its debts will have trouble reconciling that view with the fact that the proposal to borrow $100,000,000 is a loan to the Republic, and that the French Government is willing to borrow at so abominable a rate of interest. France usually does its borrowing at home, and at half that rate of usury. The necessary inference is that France has to have money and has to get it abroad, at almost any price that may be demanded. And Mr. Morgan seems willing to stake his money that France both can and will pay.

WHO PAYS?

The historic town of Old Battlefield is undergoing an experience that may be profitable to a good many other western communities. The residents of that town shared with those of other western cities the desire to build a great city. To that end they borrowed and spent in advance of the requirements of the times. Now they find themselves saddled with a debt of $700,000, with payments aggregating $300,000 in arrears. The bondholders have secured judgment against the town, and it is carried into execution that the tax bill will be settled with the rate of $40 mills, or nearly three-quarters the assessed value of their property.

Should that be done the result is plain enough, everyone who has bought property in the town would lose it. The one saving for the propertied is to do would be to tell the bondholders to take the town and sell it if they could do so. The Government of Saskatchewan is intervening in the hope of saving the town from extinction. People throughout the West generally will hope that the effort may be successful, else for the sake of the people who are threatened with ruin because of the sentiments which must always attach to one of the points where the incoming winter drives stakes far back in the beginning of things.

But the moral of the incident should not be lost. Battlego field people have now no sort of misgivings about the law. It is that it is ultimately responsible for the debt that is being incurred. They know without any involved process of reasoning who has to pay when the boom collapses, and who has to go into bankruptcy if the paying cannot be done. It would have been a good thing for Battlego and its people if years ago those who were buying land had turned themselves into a Property Owners' Association and consistently insisted that for every dollar mortgaged placed upon their homes there must be a dollar's worth of return value actually in sight.

HIGHER TAXES ON BOOTS?

Montreal shoemakers claim that they are being put out of jobs by the heavy importation of British leather boots. The manufacturers are determined to have the word "boot" taken out of the marriage ceremony.

They say that wives no longer are required, in practice, to obey their husbands.

It is to be hoped that the buyers of footwear will have to pay a premium upon the same as the Montreal manufacturers. If boots are cheap in Canada—British made or otherwise, the buyer must have a wrong sense of values. His notion of things is that they cost prices out of all proportion to the selling value of the hides out of which they are supposed to be made.

If increased duties on boots would mean an increased price to farmers for cow hides and calf skins the proposal would gain a good deal more favor than is likely to be aroused by it. Experience seems to show that there is a wide gap fixed between the price a man is willing to pay for a pair of boots, and the price of the forest. Among the most indefensible of those demands is that the price of a boot should be the cost of the bottom of it. All the joy of Christmas he had without slaughtering the innocent spruce trees.

Suppose we remember that this Christmas.

A CHANGE OF COURSE.

The Baldwin Government has informed Moscow that the treaties concluded with the Soviet Union have not been ratified. Also that the Zinovjeff letter is believed to be authentic, and that it is only an illustration and a part of a revolutionary propaganda that is being carried on in Britain at the instigation of Moscow, sometimes in secret and sometimes without recognition. In other words, that Zinovjeff lied, and that the Soviet also lied when it undertook to stop trying to foment revolutionary sentiment in Britain.

Neither this plain statement of facts nor the refusal to ratify the treaties will cause Moscow to change its ways. The revolutionaries are spreading their lies to be spread. But the peoples indicates that a radical change of policy has been made toward what once was Russia. Fraternalism is replaced by plain speaking, and the rule is laid down that British credit cannot be used to finance the destruction of the British Empire.

This is a remarkable change, and it means the less importance to people living in the overseas Dominions. It suggests that the Baldwin Government may look to the Dominions rather than to Russia, for trade to bring about the revival of British industry that is so much needed. And it suggests a vigorous vigilance superintended over the activities of Moscow's emissaries and agents in Britain, and a more vigorous application of penalties when they are caught trying to reproduce there the slaughter, robbery and ruin that has marked the regime of their pay-masters in Russia.

THE REVIVAL OF PIRACY.

Halifax despots show that in the conduct of their affairs they have the same contempt for law and skittishness." A large British schooner was towed into that port the other day whose officers relate a tale of real adventure on the high seas. Four months ago the vessel sailed from Bremen with a cargo of liquor to be sold in "rum row." It was the crew of another schooner, missed for perspective protection, who captured the craft, locked the crew under hatches, and camped on board for three weeks while they sold the whisky overside to smugglers. Before leaving the visitors put the navigating instruments and the auxiliary motors out of commission so the looted craft might have tossed on the waves indefinitely but for the arrival of a steamer.

Sympathy for the owners of the ship and the cargo will be modified by the consideration that the liquor was intended for sale in defiance of the laws of the United States, and that the crew had been stampeded. It is simply another case of the viper and the file. Whether the crew of the encounter does not much matter. Except that piracy of any kind cannot be tolerated without danger that it will develop into a brand dangerous to legitimate commerce and to ocean travel.

On the strength of that consideration the "high-seas" ought to be made a target for the guns of the naval command of any nation that gets within range of one of his craft. Not that the whisky pirate is worse than the bootlegger upon whom he preys, but because he cannot be counted on to confine his attentions to that kind of ocean commerce.

Current CommentTHE FIRST AMERICANS

Los Angeles Times

The Indian population of the United States increased $18 in the past year and now totals 626,682. Oklahoma leads the states with 119,929 Indians, and next in order are California, 110,000; Texas, 51,000; and New Mexico, 40,000. Indians are still more to the point, these Indians are new citizens of the United States, as they should be. The political influence of the Indians, however, is drawing to its term tardily but certainly a finality in the fate of the first Americans.

Should that be done the result is plain enough, everyone who has bought property in the town would lose it. The one saving for the propertied is to do would be to tell the bondholders to take the town and sell it if they could do so. The Government of Saskatchewan is intervening in the hope of saving the town from extinction. SPARE THE TREES?

Calgary Herald

A conservation committee of the number of young men qualified for citizenship and other belligerent services in the United States at ten million, a case, says The Calgary Herald, which regards this as a sensible and modest estimate.

For what honest man will deny that no matter how much he may be in the right, he is not the husband who has been doing the fighting ever since Eve made Adam eat the fatal apple, core and all.

It is to be hoped that the boys there have a good proportion of the selling value of the hides out of which they are supposed to be made.

POLITICAL LEADERSHIP?

Toronto Globe

The notion that outside of parties and the political field there is some man of towering intellect, statesmanlike capacity and magnetic personality who could solve all our problems and vindicate the pace of national progress is a delusion. The political field in Canada has been almost invariably through the regular courses of parliamentary life and party activity.

The death of Sir John Thompson, who was taken from the house of his health to become Minister of Justice and afterward died in office, has given a new political aspect to the question of the future of the country.

Oliver Mowat was transferred from the Bench to the political sphere, and the question is whether they will have to sacrifice the Canadian hides made out of Canadian hides tanned in Cana-

ada. Now they wear boots made out of hides grown in the Argentine, tanned in Great Britain and manufactured either in Great Britain or in the United States. All the time the Canadian shoemakers are looking for a market for their products, and the question is whether they

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE AT CAPITOL THEATRE SUNDAY

A lecture on Christian Science was delivered in the Capitol Theatre on Sunday afternoon by Mrs. Emma R. Newton, of this city, in introducing the lecturer, said in Friends:

"The members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Edmonton, welcome you to this lecture, and hope it will open your eyes to all of us."

"Those already knowing and loving the Truth will have the opportunity to gain a clearer concept of it; those who have not yet accepted it will have the opportunity to fully may find difficulties cleared away; others will gain a better understanding of the general interest in masters of religion, with the result that they will be more willing to accept it, and that it is a better position to arrive at a just estimation of its value."

"Mrs. Eddie, the discoverer and founder of the Truth, has established the Board of Lecturers of the mother church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston, and the clergies, one member of whom is Dr. Charles E. Smith, of Denver, Colorado, the lecturer for this afternoon, who will now speak to us on the subject, 'The Science of Spiritual Consciousness.'

Mr. Palmer said in part:

"In our human experiences we may encounter many different states of consciousness, unless our thought is concentrated upon the one true state of man. We may even in one day or one hour go up and down the gamut of consciousness, from health to sickness, and therefore we might well wonder if there are not different states of consciousness. But that is a wrong conclusion. Christian Science teaches that there is but one state of consciousness, and that there is but one genuine state of consciousness based upon the reality of the universe. That is but one state of consciousness, but there is reality, but one knowledge of God, one consciousness of God, and that is the state of God as the Scripture declares. When we perceive that there is but one genuine state of consciousness, we can likewise see that mortal man is but one state of consciousness. A false state of consciousness is but one state of consciousness, and a poverty-stricken man, a mental state of poverty-stricken man, a spiritual state of poverty-stricken man. A mortal state of consciousness is but one state of consciousness, but there is reality, but one knowledge of God, one consciousness of God, and that is the state of God as the Scripture declares, and as the True.

"Those who have been brought up to think that there is more than one state of consciousness, we can see that a new silhouette is on the way.

You remember the old rhyme, "Humpy Dumpum had a great fall, And all the king's horses could pull him up again." Well, now, in order that any false belief in the old rhyme may not prevail among all men believe it. One single example will suffice. In the year 1856, Mrs. Eddy proved that matter is neither real nor unreal, but is the substance of thought. She believed that matter was the substance and origin of creation, and that a system of rationalism could be built upon the theory of matter.

"My friend, the human belief of the reality and universality of matter, is the belief that matter is the substance of earth and all their labours, that belief where it was prior to the year 1856, all men accept the theory of Conservatism. Anyone who affirms that theory, I am sure, will laugh at that. That theory is obsolete.
